Made in the United States of America

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this book is very simple.

It attempts to list, insofar as possible, every person bearing the surname HULL who was included in the United States Census of 1850.

It is directed not only to Hulls, but also to those with Hull ancestors within the last few generations. Any American who was born a Hull, or whose ancestry since 1850 includes a Hull line, is very likely to have Hull ancestors who were in America in 1850.

It is quite probable that the names of those ancestors are in this book.

There are good reasons for selecting the year 1850. Although the United States Government took the first national population census in 1790 and continued every ten years thereafter, it was not until 1850 that the census record included the name of every person in the family. Prior to that only the heads of families were listed by name. Other members were indicated only in anonymous groups of specific age ranges and sex. The 1850 census not only began the listing of each person by name, but for each one it included, among other things, age and place of birth.

It would have been quite impractical, if not impossible, to compile a book like this until very recently, when indexes to the 1850 censuses of the various states were completed and published. These indexes, however, list for the most part only heads of families. In order to get names of other family members and personal information on all individuals it is necessary to go to the original census records. The National Archives and Records Service of the Federal Government microfilmed the 1850 census on 1,009 rolls, designated Microcopy No. M432, and these were the source of data for this book.

The book consists of two parts. The Directory lists Hull families and single Hulls by geographic location, in the order in which they are given in the census record. The Index to this directory is an alphabetical listing, by first name, of all persons named in the directory, including men, women and children. It is evident that it includes a great many more names than are to be found in the published indexes to the 1850 census for the various states.

The Directory

Like the National Archives microfilm, the Directory is organized alphabetically by state, and within each state alphabetically by county. The reference numbers used in the Directory are keyed into the microfilm roll numbers.

Directory listings are by family, as in the census. It should be noted that the 1850 census does not specify relationships of individuals to the head of the family. Any conclusions in that regard must be assumptions.

Each family is identified by a Family Reference Number, usually of nine digits. The first three digits (or four in some Wisconsin entries) refer to the microfilm roll number. The next three digits refer to the page number in the original census record, and the last three digits refer to the family number in a particular locality, as assigned by the enumerator in the order of visitation. Where the family number in the census was more than three digits, the full number is shown in the Directory, but only the last three digits are indicated in the Index and are considered part of the Family Reference Number.

The Directory lists all persons with the surname Hull, together with given name, age and state of birth. Occupations are listed for most heads of families and for some other adult members, especially if they were something other than farmer or laborer. If there is a possibility of uncertainty, sex is indicated by M or F immediately after the age. This is done not only with names such as Frances-Francis, which often were used indiscriminately, but with unusual names, with names represented in the record only by initials, and in cases where names were partly or totally illegible. In such instances, the mere fact of the existence of a person of certain age and sex in a family could be significant. Uncertainties are indicated by question marks. These are usually due to poor legibility of the original. With sufficient study some of them probably could be resolved.

All surnames are Hull, except in the very few cases where other names may be indicated. Spelling of given names follows the census record in general, although many obvious misspellings were corrected. Some degree of consistency was attempted by using certain commonly accepted spellings. Age usually refers to that which would have been given in the summer or fall of 1850. To keep ages in whole years, all infants under one year are listed as 1, as well as those whose age actually was given as 1. State of birth is indicated in the Directory immediately after the age by the standard two-letter abbreviation presently used by the Postal Service.

A compilation such as this cannot be absolutely complete, nor can it be completely accurate with regard to all of the people it lists. In some cases the legibility of the original record was very poor, either because of poor handwriting, fading of ink or other ravages of age in the original record, or deterioration in the microfilm. In other cases there may have been omissions or mistakes on the part of the enumerator. Finally, there may have been omissions, errors or debatable points of judgement on the part of transcribers, including the compiler of this directory.

The Index

The Index lists every person whose name appears in complete form in the Directory. It includes some who are recorded in the census only by initials, but it does not include those shown in incomplete form in the Directory because of poor legibility.

Listing is alphabetical by first name only. Middle name or initial is shown when available, but is disregarded in establishing the alphabetical sequence. For identical first names the sequence is by age, which immediately follows the name. After that it is by Family Reference Number. The first three digits of the number establish location by alphabetical order of state and county. For convenience, the state is also shown by its two-letter abbreviation immediately following the age. It should be emphasized that this represents the state of residence in 1850. In the Directory, on the other hand, the abbreviation following the age of each person indicates state of birth.

In considering names, possible variations in spelling should be kept in mind. With regard to ages listed, it should be noted that the census enumerations were made in general in the last half of 1850. Some ages, for one reason or another, may have been recorded incorrectly. Thus in locating a particular individual, especially one with a common given name, the reader may wish to check several entries in the Directory.

Use of the Directory and Index

Although it may be of general interest to Hulls and their descendants to have a list of all the Hulls who are known to have been living in the United States in 1850, this book is not meant simply to appeal to passing curiosity. It is designed to provide a new and unique tool for studying Hull history and genealogy. It is quite probably the only tool of its kind for a family as numerous as the Hulls.

A searcher starting with nothing but the name of a Hull who was known to be alive in 1850, together with some idea of the person's age in 1850, may find him or her listed in the Index. The Family Reference Number shown there gives the location in the Directory. That lists the individual with his or her family group in a specific state and county, and probably in a specific town or township. It also gives the age and state of birth of each family member, as well as, in most instances, some information regarding occupations.

The Directory can also provide clues as to possible relationships between families in a certain area. The census listings follow the order in which the families were visited. Therefore census family numbers (last three digits of the Family Reference Number) which are consecutive , or which are fairly close together, in all probability represent families who actually lived close together. Since Hull is not a very common name, it is reasonable to assume that Hull families living close together were probably related.

It should be noted that in the Directory the names of heads of families are in capital letters. A single individual listed alone with name not thus capitalized can be assumed to be living with a family other than Hull, perhaps as a relative, a boarder or a worker of some sort. Since the 1850 census does not indicate relationships of individuals to the head of the household or to each other, one cannot be more specific.

There may be occasional instances, both in the Index and in the Directory, where an entry may not be in strict alphabetical or numerical order, but it should be close. This is most likely to happen in the order of Family Reference Numbers in the Directory. There is rarely a problem with the first three digits, which identify state and county. The last two groups of digits, which refer to page and family numbers, may show some irregularities in order within a county. This is usually attributable to the original record and to the organization of microfilm sequences. At most, it may require perusal of several entries in a county to find a particular number. In short, one should not get discouraged too easily.

Hulls before 1850

It is not within the scope of this book to try to describe all of the various sources of information relating to Hull family history and genealogy. It is useful to note, however, that in addition to the census and other public records there has been a considerable amount of published material dealing with Hulls. This dates back at least to the eighteen sixties.

Most notable is the comprehensive book by Col. Charles H. Weygant, "The Hull Family in America". This was privately published in 1912 under the auspices of a Hull Family Association which had been organized for the purpose several years previously. Long out of print and difficult to find, it was recently reproduced by Marion Hull McHale. (1)

Weygant undertook to trace the descendants of three men who came to Massachusetts from England between 1630 and 1635: George, Reverend Joseph and Richard Hull. George and Reverend Joseph were brothers from the village of Crewkerne in Somersetshire. The descendants of these three men were numerous, and spreading out across the country in the next three centuries they have constituted an important fraction of all the Hulls in the land. Many were traced up to the early nineteen hundreds. It follows that many of the descendants listed by Weygant are to be found in "Hulls in 1850".

Other Hulls have come to America over the years, most of them from England, but the families studied by Weygant remain among those whose origins and histories have been best documented. Although older publications also had been concerned with descendants of one or more of the three Massachusetts immigrants and drew on many of the same sources, none were as comprehensive, detailed and meticulously organized as Weygant's work.

It is important to note that Weygant had no access to the 1850 census. Under the law, a period of 72 years must elapse before the detailed record is opened to the public. For example, at this writing (1982) the census for 1910 has just recently been made available for public inspection.

Interest in Hull history and genealogy is currently fostered by a group of Hull descendants throughout the country. They are linked by a "Hull Family Newsletter" published by Robert E. Hull. This is visible present evidence of research that has been going on in one place or another for well over a hundred years. (2)

Hopefully this book will be useful in the conduct of that research. If it can help Hull descendants to establish their links to other players in a fascinating history of pioneering in the development of our country it will have attained its objective.

Roll 303 Barnstable County

This county is of special interest because of its early connection with Rev. Joseph Hull and his descendants. There is some confusion over names. Some families are clearly Hull, others are just as clearly Hall. In a few instances both spellings occur in the same family group. Because of similarity in writing the "u" and the "a" there is sometimes uncertainty as to which was intended, especially in the town of Dennis below. The families listed are those I have judged to be clearly HULL.

Note: In many cases North Carolina census records give no town or township names. It is also common to find no birthplace listed for many individuals, aside from "N.C." at the top of the column. Unlike the standard practice nearly everywhere else, many enumerators here do not use ditto marks or the equivalent "do.". Evidently, in the absence of other indication, it is to be assumed that the birthplace was North Carolina.
